How to Use This Map

NYC Transit operates 24 hours a day, but not all routes operate at all times. Train identification letters or numbers below station names on the map show the basic, seven-day-a-week service from 6AM to midnight.

A bold letter or number at a station (4 [B]) indicates that the route always operates and always stops at the station between 6AM and midnight. A light letter or number (5) indicates that the route either does not operate at all times or sometimes skips the station. The service chart details 24-hour-a-day service.

In the service guide, "Peak Direction" express means that the train operates as an express when it is running toward Manhattan in the morning and away from Manhattan in the afternoon.

Times shown are approximate. For more detailed information consult Passenger Information Centers in stations or call our Travel Information Center.
